WHU - Otto Beisheim School of Management Apr 11 2022 How can a personal desire to leave a lasting mark and criticism of the German university system lead to the establishment of an internationally renowned institution of higher education? Klaus Brockhoff provides the answer to this question by accurately tracing the detailed 35-year history of WHU - Otto Beisheim School of Management - and highlighting all of its highs and lows in the process. Despite the challenges associated with founding and operating an institution of higher education, it was always and will continue to be the remarkable spirit of the donor, university administration members, employees as well as students, alumni and sponsors that make a decisive contribution to the overall success of WHU. At the same time, the history of WHU may also serve as an example for other universities wanting to position themselves successfully amid international competition that is becoming increasingly dynamic. Ever since the establishment of WHU, Professor Dr. Dr. h. c. Klaus Brockhoff has been monitoring the institution's evolution, served as its dean for five years and then went on to be part of the foundation's Executive Board for 13 years. His presentation relies on a comprehensive document analysis in addition to personal conversations with numerous contemporary witnesses and members of WHU. The Beisheim foundations in Switzerland and Germany remain committed to promoting the philanthropic legacy of Otto Beisheim, one of the co-founders of Metro. At the same time, both foundations are the primary sponsors of WHU, which has borne the name of the entrepreneur - Otto Beisheim School of Management - ever since he demonstrated such impressive personal commitment in 1993. The Beisheim foundations are the editors of this publication, which will also be published in German.

Experiences of Adult Learners in an Executive MBA Program: A Case Study at a Research University Dec 27 2020 The purpose of this qualitative case study was to understand the experiences of adult learners who have returned to higher education to pursue an Executive MBA degree. Using narrative inquiry as the methodology, the experiences of the participants were documented. The narrative of their experiences included the experiences that led the participants to pursue the Executive MBA, their experiences as adult learners in the Executive MBA program, and their reflections on how their lives have been or will be affected by their participation in the Executive MBA program. Data were collected from 10 adult learners using individual interviews, non-participant observations, and document reviews. Four themes that emerged from the study were: (1) The undergraduate and professional experiences that lead adult learners to the Executive MBA program vary significantly; (2) Adult learners' experiences in the Executive MBA program are shaped by their disposition towards learning, the interpersonal dynamics of their cohort, and the adult learners' expectations of the program; (3) Adult learners make short-term sacrifices in almost all areas of their lives in order to successfully persist in the Executive MBA program; and (4) Adult learners anticipate personal and/or career growth as a result of their experiences in the Executive MBA program. Following a discussion of these themes, implications for Executive MBA programs and for adult learners who may be considering the pursuit of the Executive MBA degree are shared. Four recommendations for future research were shared. These recommendations include: (1) The minority experience in Executive MBA programs; (2) the role of entrance exams from the perspective of the adult learner; (3) the role of online learning in Executive MBA programs; and (4) why do adult learners choose the Executive MBA?
